But, there are times, when even we are struck in the face by a force of mystery so strong that we are left bewildered. Take the example of the disappearance of the Malaysian Airline plane MH370. With all our modern aviation technology behind us in full force, we haven't been able to locate the plane even well after its disappearance.

This is not the first time we have been unable to solve a mystery. Over the years there have been several incidences which have left a big question mark in the pages of our history.
